Music teacher

Why Mr Vince Loves Teaching:

“I enjoy sharing the joy that music can bring to others, and I feel very fulfilled in helping students learn and grow!”

Mr. Vince teaches private piano lessons and group music classes at APA, where he enjoys helping students build confidence, creativity, and a lifelong love of music. Whether working one-on-one or leading a classroom of young musicians, he creates engaging, encouraging lessons that help students develop strong musical skills while having fun.

Mr Vince earned his Bachelor of Music in Performance from The Ohio State University and his Master of Music Education from Capital University. His musical journey began with the saxophone in fifth grade, and over the years he developed a passion for piano, continually expanding his skills through ongoing study and practice. His broad musical background allows him to help students build a strong foundation in musicianship while developing confidence at the piano.

With years of private teaching experience and his role as the Instrumental Music Teacher at Eastbrook Academy in Milwaukee, Mr Vince brings a wealth of experience working with students of all ages. In addition to teaching instrumental music, he has taught K4 general music, piano lab, and recorder classes, giving him extensive experience creating engaging, age-appropriate group music experiences that foster confidence, teamwork, and a love of learning.

Mr Vince is passionate about helping every student reach their musical potential, whether they're taking their very first piano lesson or discovering the joy of making music in a group setting. He is excited to be part of the APA community and looks forward to inspiring each student on their musical journey.
